A HOTEL shaped like a bum-hole is one of the weirdest places in the world where guests can spend a night.

Named CasAnus, the unusually shaped hotel was created by Dutch artist Joep Van Lieshout in 2007.

CasAnus hotel can be found in Belgium

Since then, hundreds of people have stayed in the unusual hotel, located near Antwerp in Belgium.

The hotel is part of an exhibit at Verbeke Sculpture Park, home to a number of pieces of art that forms part of a private collection by Geert and Carlan Verbeke-Lens.

It is designed in the shape of a colon, with the anus section featuring a double bed with the sphincter at the other end.

A table and a bathroom are also built into the hotel.

The design is anatomically correct, although it has been inflated in size to fit the amenities, with veins drawn on the outside.

Built with wood, PU foam and fibreglass-reinforced polyester, the hotel has working electricity and plumbing.

The door is located in the middle of the structure with a number of windows built in, although there is little natural light at night.
